

though and as the years moved on he grew in stature as a young man and confounded even the priests with his knowledge at an early age. He knew the Torah better than most. He was a challenge as a child but in way that I wasn't accustomed to. I felt diminished sometimes by his own perfection. But if he was the redeemer of us all how could he be any less.

Praise God above for my small part in raising our Redeemer. I was getting older in age and my strength was failing so I now know I won't see the end of this story with my earthly eyes, but I know that my redeemer lives and God is Good.

My part in this story was small. It was later in life, when I realized that I must diminish in importance so that (Yeshua) could fulfill all that He came to do. And I know there is much more, but I would not see it all. However, Maria was younger than I know that she will bear greater pain than I ultimately. I know that God is with her and that Adonai will rescue us all. God has not departed from us.
